Bid of $42,900 For Pump House Accepted by Council

Coleman council, at its meeting last week, on recommendation of the town's engineering firm, accepted the bid of $42,900 for the construction of a pump house for the town's water supply.

The bid was submitted by Borger Construction Ltd. of Calgary, and work on the unit is to start during the latter part of September when the underground water level is at its lowest. A second bid for $59,600 was also tendered.

The new unit will be completed within 150 days after construction starts, and is so designed that the building can be extended and a filtration plant installed at a later date if it is required.

A new chlorinator plant is also to be installed. Coleman Collieries Limited will be contacted with a view to getting electric power brought to the site.

A meeting is to be held in the Coleman Scout hall on Thursday, September 8th to discuss plans for a preliminary survey for a swimming pool. During this discussion council decided to ask its engineering firm to look over two sites in town that might be suitable for a pool.

Correspondence received advised that the trial between former Mayor John Ostash and the Town of Coleman is to be held in Fort Macleod court house, on October 1st.

A letter was also received from Norman Botterill, manager of the CMLH-TV advising that work is progressing on the installation of a satellite on Ironstone Mountain that will provide good television reception for the town of Coleman. The unit is to be in operation by October 1st.

A letter was received from the School Division, enquiring if the town had a 10-acre site available for the possible construction of a new school. Council checked several plans of several available areas and will bring this matter before the Old Man River Planning Commission for their recommendation.

Mayor John Holyk and Secretary Dick Jensen will attend a Centennial liaison meeting to be held in Edmonton September 20th.

The meeting is being called to organize Centennial plans for the Caravan unit that will be visiting the Pass in March or April of 1967.

Town foreman will be advised to attend a Safety meeting with the town council once per month to comply with a request of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Applications will be received by the town for the position of caretaker for the town hall and fire hall, and also for a general utility man.

A delegation of council will meet with the Provincial Cabinet panel that will visit Coleman on September 7th to hear various delegations. Council will bring up four items to the cabinet ministers—the first being a request for the government to attempt to drop the underground water level in West Coleman; to provide financial assistance to the community for road work in proportion to the money that is being spent in cities on by-passes and bridges; to give immediate consideration to an old persons' home to serve the Crows Nest Pass and to discuss urban renewal for the area, which is the eastern entrance to the province.

A report was presented to council outlining the progress being made on the Legion Memorial Centennial Park. The project is to cost in the vicinity of $8000.

Approval was given by council for the exchange of a parcel of land owned by the town for a parcel owned by the Forestry Department. The provincial assessor will be requested to assess the new registered lots acquired by the town.

John Salus, chairman of Coleman School Board, will be asked to arrange for a meeting of the Board with council to discuss problems at the ball park and other business concerning the board and council.

Council approved the town foreman ordering four tons of highway salt for use on town streets during the winter. This will be ordered jointly with the town of Blairmore to cut delivery costs from Edmonton.

Mayor Holyk proclaimed September 30th a civic holiday.

Regional study of the Crows Nest Pass area will be discussed at a meeting called by the Old Man River Regional Planning Commission to be held in Bellevue at 7 p.m. September 21.

View Construction Site of Expo 67

Visitors from many countries tour the site of the 1967 World Exhibition at Montreal to view the progress of construction.

Pass Residents Organize for Pool

A very successful meeting was held in the Blairmore Legion basement on Monday, August 29 when representatives from all the Pass towns gathered to discuss the possibilities of constructing a swimming pool for the Crows Nest Pass.

At this meeting it was the unanimous opinion of all the representatives that there was a strong necessity for a pool in the Pass, regardless of its location.

Expert advice is being sought from the Provincial Secretary of the Cultural and Recreational section of the province of Alberta on the most suitable site of such a pool in the Crows Nest Pass.

A delegation was chosen to meet with the Recreational Minister from the provincial government, who will be visiting the Crows Nest Pass on Wednesday, September 7.

Public meetings will be held in the near future with a view to wards solid organization, slate of officers, committees, etc.

Junior Wardens Attend Swim Camp

A troop of 24 Coleman Junior Forest Wardens attended a swimming camp at Wassa Lake and Rock Creek in British Columbia last week-end.

The Wardens were driven to Kimberley Junior Wardens' Camp at Wassa Lake by Stan Berry in a large truck trailer unit provided by the Bohomelec Branch at Coleman.

Swimming instructions were given to the youths by John McGillivray of Edmonton, who is a bronze medalist swimming instructor, assisted by George Neve of Kimberley and John Deane of Coleman, who is supervisor of the Coleman Wardens.

While at the Wassa Lake camp, Mr. Dean's father, Jack Deane of Kimberley, took over the duties of coaching for the boys. Three Cranbrook Junior Forest Wardens attended the camp and were under the charge of Sam Murray from Marysville.

Reports indicate the event to have been very successful with five of the local Wardens having been taught how to swim and considerable improvement was noted in the other Wardens' swimming abilities.

Fish & Game Assoc. Start New Project

Initial work on the Coleman Fish & Game Association dam project being built northwest of Coleman, got underway August 28th, when work crews began clearing the land of trees and brush.

A small number of men from the Association equipped with power saws and axes were aided by 20 members of the Coleman Junior Forest Wardens.

While the men cut the brush and small trees the Wardens helped the brush. The larger trees being cut will be skidded out of the dam site by Joe Michalsky of Blairmore. A caterpillar tractor with a driver, Stan Berry, was provided by the Bohomelec Branch.

Prior to cutting the brush the water level in one of the beaver dams at the head of the site was lowered to facilitate cutting the brush. The water level for the new dam was surveyed by Dick Girardi, assisted by Paul Filewich. The club report that it will take at least another six days work to completely clear the land for the dam that is to cover approximately five to six acres. A dam approximately 100 feet in length will be constructed of timber at the lower end of the proposed pond which lies between two small hills. It is hoped the project can be completed this fall so that spring runoff will fill the dam after which fish will be planted. The dam will be supplied with water by a small unnamed creek.

Club members and other interested sportsmen in the Crows Nest Pass, wishing to aid with this project should contact President Danie Filafilo, Secretary Rudy Yeliga or Project Manager Ted Michalsky, all of Coleman.

Special Legion Meeting Hears Centennial Report

Reports presented at a special Legion meeting in Coleman Sunday morning indicate that the town's Centennial project in the Memorial Park is progressing very well.

Cap's Art Works of Calgary, advised that the six-foot two inches high bronze statue of a soldier in mourning would be ready and delivered within the next two weeks.

The soldier is to be mounted on top of the cement Cenotaph in the centre of the Legion Park.

Marx Building Supplies of Hillcrest reported that the cement work is almost complete in the park area as the entrance gates to the park have been widened to eight feet, new sidewalks have been laid, the cement around the Cenotaph has been repaired and other deteriorated cement has been removed and repaired.

Graf Plumbing and Heating of Blairmore advised that the waterworks system including an underground system, would be installed as soon as the grounds were ready.

The contract for installation of two large electric floodlights and other electrical work in the park was awarded to Modern Electric of Coleman.

Legion President Al Krywolt reported that he has written to the Alberta Agricultural Department to obtain twelve 5-foot-high blue spruce trees to be planted in the park along the east wall. Other shruberies are also being arranged for.

Following the meeting on the Centennial project, President Krywolt announced that the Legion bingo nights would resume Friday, September 2nd, following the summer recess. These events will be held every second Friday evening.

Arrangements were also completed for the first social evening of the fall, to be held on September 3rd and the next on September 10th. The social events will be held every two weeks afterwards.

Fish & Game Assn. Push For More Fish

Coleman Fish and Game Association, at a special meeting August 23rd delegated Club member Al Krywolt to contact the Calgary Fisheries Department and request that more fish be planted in the rivers and ponds in this area as the fishing pressure in the district is extremely heavy.

The Department will be requested to stock Island Lake as soon as possible. The club feels that the district is not getting its quota of fish stocking in proportion to the acreage of water in this district as compared to other areas.

Enquiries will also be made by the Club with regard to the possibility of getting an approach built on the south side of Highway 3 to Island Lake. The Highways Engineer will be contacted on this matter.

OF MANY THINGS

(Ambrose Hills)

I Buy a Farm

It has often been said that most men make their major mistakes in life between the age of 45 and 55. I moved cautiously through that danger period, then waited a couple of years, then made my mistake - I bought a farm.

I know exactly as much about farming as my critics say I know about politics and economics. And no doubt some of the farmers who have read my learned comments on farming over the years will be waiting to guffaw joyfully watching what happens to that wiseacre Ambrose Hills, now that he must practice instead of preach.

When the young people who bought my writing shop in Winnipeg said they'd distribute the column if I would like to go on writing, I grabbed at the chance. This is a perfect setting from which to preach! Below our little farm in the Fraser Valley stretch the Serpentine Flats, and in the distance, snow-covered, stands Mount Baker, in Washington. Sitting at a card table in our front yard, surveying this pastoral and majestic scene, millions of idealistic themes fight for expression, while in the front pasture the weeds shoot up. Boy, how I could preach from here!

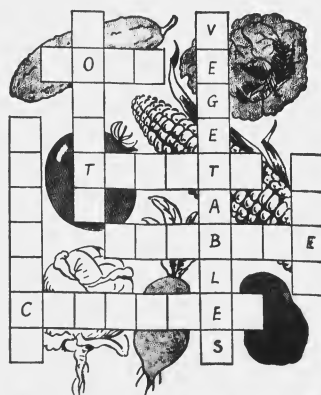

From now on, however, no preaching. - Instead, you'll get the confessions of a greenhorn farmer. Fact is, we took the old sign off the gate, here, and we have re-named the place Greenhorn Farm, and adopted the slogan "Run By Genuine Greenhorn".

Our machinery consists of a lawnmower, a small rototiller, a couple of shovels, hoes, and pitchforks. Our livestock, so far (we've been here less than one month) consists of one cat, Sam, and three horses: Golden Dawn, Midnight and Topper.

What we lack in machinery, livestock and cash, we make up for in ambition, and high hopes. The fellow who wrote that book, "Five Acres and Independence" better move overseas if our dreams crash, or some night I'll sneak up on him with my old Winchester! Or shame him with a book I'll call "Ten Acres and Disaster".

One crop has already started to pay off: our health crop. We all have started to eat like horses, laugh more, rise earlier. You've got to get healthy fast or die if you want to be a farmer!

To Seek Democratic Party Nomination

Garth Turcott, lawyer, announced that he would seek the New Democratic Party nomination for the forthcoming Provincial By-Election in the Pincher Creek-Crowsnest Riding.

GASOLINE HANDLING ACCIDENTS

(By Austin E. Bridges, Alberta Fire Commissioner)

Here is a fire prevention reminder about gasoline handling.

It is most timely because most everyone has occasion to use gasoline, either in a motor car, motor boat, camp stoves and other motorized equipment. The record of accidents and loss of life through mishandling of gasoline, has made it most important that frequent reminders be given about safe handling of this explosive product. We have received a report this week from Calgary describing an accident with a gasoline motor in which an instructor of a class at a boys' school suffered burns to his hands. Fortunately, only one gallon of gasoline was on hand and that was kept in a safety can. A smaller amount in a cup was being used to prime the motor so that only a small amount was involved in a flash fire. Had there been an open bucket of gasoline, the consequences would have been most serious and perhaps there would have been loss of life.

Not so fortunate was the incident reported from a farm district recently which took the life of a 14-year-old girl. Gasoline was being transferred from a barrel to another container and at that particular time, a kerosene lantern was being used. The kerosene lamp ignited the fumes and the sudden flare-up involved three persons, whose clothing ignited resulting in one death and severe burns to two others.

Because gasoline vapors are from two and a half to four times heavier than air and tends to settle in low places, extreme caution must be taken in gasoline transfer operations.

An open light or spark or match is all it takes to trigger a sudden fire. Even a static electric spark can cause an explosion while gasoline is being transferred from one container to another.

The metallic contact between the two containers will prevent sparking. In cases of refueling a vehicle from a gasoline drum or pump, the metal nozzle of the pump must be kept in contact with the metal of the gasoline tank. Metal funnels are safe to use but plastic funnels would create a danger.

Care and handling of gasoline is only one of many fire prevention precautions that will be reviewed and publicized prior to and during Fire Prevention Week.

Why windows in jets?

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Flying by jet these days, unless one has a window seat, one isn't likely to see much of what's going on outside the aircraft. In fact, even if one has a seat by the window there's not much to see anyway at 30,000 feet plus, other than the tops of clouds; and when you've seen one of these you've seen them all.

Which raises a question that is receiving the consideration of air carriers and aircraft designers. Why bother with windows at all? Why not have the body of the aircraft one unbroken cylinder of metal? The advantages would be great.

Cabins have to be pressurized and a cabin without windows would be safer (as well as cheaper to construct) than one broken all along its length by cutouts for windows. (The metal fatigue that led to the crash of Comet jets started near the windows).

The trend towards no windows has already begun. The large oval windows of a Viscount measure 25 inches from top to bottom and are 19 inches across. But the windows on the new Concord supersonic airliner will be only nine inches by seven inches. Little will be seen out of them, particularly at the height at which the Concord will fly.

Why windows at all, then? If passengers insist on seeing what's going on outside, some kind of closed circuit television could be rigged up, with each seat having a small TV screen showing the passenger what's passing beneath him.

The inability to gaze out of the window removes one activity that air passengers can indulge in. And this leads to a broader question—what to do with passengers, or how to keep them happy, on relatively long flights?

Writing in a recent issue of The Spectator, Oliver Stewart proposed—not entirely in jest—that air passengers of the future may be pre-packaged and pre-medicated so that they will get on the aircraft, remain immovable and comatose, during the flight, and wake up just in time to get off.

After dealing with the window question, Mr. Stewart notes that some intelligent airline operators have tried to give passengers something to look at by introducing films and TV. "But the International Air Transport Association, ever anxious to see that air travellers get as little as possible for their money, has frowned on such entertainments."

The remaining activities, the writer says, seem to be a glum stare at the back of the seat in front, and sleep. (Apparently the airlines on which he travels do not have Air Canada's monthly magazine with its crossword which can be spun out to engage about 25 minutes of air time).

Deprived of entertainment and prevented from looking out of the window, more travellers, according to the author, are doing what nervous ones have long done—they take tranquilizers before the flight. Thus the passenger, of his own volition, has taken the first step along the road proposed by the more single-minded engineering extremists.

Safe mowing not an accident

A staggering 90 per cent of all power lawn mower accidents are caused by human error.

This disturbing statistic is an indictment of amateur gardeners who approach lawn mowing as a chore to dispense with quickly, and too often, carelessly.

Result — injuries which could have been avoided — injuries to not only the operator of the mower but in many instances to innocent children included.

The tragedy is that attention to the simplest safety rules would end such accidents.

Consider the power mower for what it is — a useful, but potentially dangerous tool. In this respect it is much like many other aids to living, such as guns, automobiles, tractors and electric saws.

Remember that the rotary blade of a power mower spins rapidly at 2,000 to 4,000 revolutions a minute. This means that the blade tips of an average 20-inch mower are driven at speeds that would outdistance the fastest car on the speediest highway — 100 to 200 miles an hour!

Before taking the controls of a power lawn mower, be sure you understand them thoroughly. The manual which accompanies the machine gives a complete explanation, and after you have learned how to start and operate the machine be sure too, that you know how to stop it fast in an emergency.

An essential safety precaution is to clear the lawn of any sticks, stones, wire or debris that might be thrown by the blade. A good idea is to add fuel before starting the engine, never while it is running. Always stand away from the blades when starting the engine.

Children, pets and other onlookers make an appreciative audience most of the time — but not when you are mowing the lawn. That's the time to keep them all out of harm's way.

Never cut grass by pulling the mower towards you, and stop the engine before pushing the mower across gravel drives, walks or roads. Remember, too, that a heavy mower speeding up a steep slope can turn over. And, when walking on slopes or wet grass be sure of your footing.

Stop the engine and disconnect the spark wire before checking or working on a mower, and for maximum functioning of the machine do not overspeed the engine or change the governor settings. Do not operate the engine in areas where carbon monoxide fumes can collect, and be sure to stop the engine if you leave the machine—even for a moment.

Youngsters and persons not acquainted with the machine should not be permitted to run it. A power mower, as these hints imply, is not a toy or an object of curiosity.

The initial "built-in" safety, together with attention to the safety hints in this article, will safeguard you as well as your mower.

Keeping your wits about you whenever you roll the mower across your lawn, is, in the last analysis, all that is necessary to enjoy your mower without risk to life or limb.

Safe mowing is no accident!

Centennial
Reportby JOHN W. FISHER
CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

Report No. 11—

I have met a number of Canadians inspired, by the coming Centennial celebrations, to research the family tree.

Tracing back one's lineage can be an interesting pastime and may produce some surprises. One woman from London, Ontario, told me she had turned up the uniform her grandfather wore in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885, stored for years in an attic trunk belonging to a maiden aunt. Until the uniform was discovered she hadn't known her grandfather was involved with the prairie uprising.

The reason why I like to encourage people to research family history is that it may provide more than a textbook link with the history of the country. History can become alive and personal.

A woman in Ottawa, for example who has adopted Canada as her country, knew about the Battle of the Plains of Abraham but she did not realize it was Captain James Cook who guided General Wolfe's men to the shores of Quebec. She learned of this when she discovered she was a direct descendant of that famous navigator.

It is worth noting, also, that the spirit of the times rules out the old snobbery associated with claims of having dukes, counts and other nobles as ancestors.

I recall touches of humor associated with a period 25 to 30 years ago when some families went to great trouble and sometimes considerable expense to have their histories researched. Those whose ancestors came from Europe or the British Isles often were hopeful of finding proof of heroes or royal blood in their backgrounds. Certainly a copy of the family crest on old parchment, framed and hanging in the dining room, was a status symbol of sorts.

During the family crest craze various "services" across the seas published classified advertisements in North American newspapers offering to research official documents and produce bona fide family crests — for a fee.

It was with dismay that some on this side of the ocean would later discover they actually had paid for a fictional drawing which came only from the mind of a second rate commercial artist in a foreign land.

Family history research can produce exciting stories too. One of our young office boys at the Centennial Commission didn't give a hoot about history until he discovered that an ancestor of his figured prominently in the Papi-neau uprising. His eyes stared in disbelief as he spotted his own unusual French name in Mason Wade's "French Canadians". They widened even more when he read on to find that a troop of the Montreal Volunteer Cavalry had been sent to St. Johns, Quebec, to capture his ancestor. The ancestor evaded the Cavalry and fled to the United States.

"Gee, I've often wondered why I have so many American relatives," he said. "Now I know. — Here in Canada we had a price on our heads!"

I recommend, as a personal Centennial project for yourself that you check into old family albums and books lying around the house. Ask the relatives too. There's no telling what interesting Canadian history you might find with a family connection of your own.

Whether they have "trees" or not, families also can play a big part in the Centennial celebrations by making 1967 the big year for those picnics and reunions which long have been typical festive occasions in many Canadian communities.

The Homemaker

By: Miss Patricia L. Peters
District Home Economist,
Box 40, Claresholm, Alta.,
Phone 235-3422

May I introduce myself? I am the new District Home Economist for this area. As such, I shall be occupying a weekly spot in the paper with news from the District Home Economist's office, hints and general information for the homemaker.

My headquarters is in Claresholm, and I have a bi-weekly office day in Cardston. My area covers the south west corner of the province, and is about three times the size of my home province of Prince Edward Island.

As you can probably imagine, I am finding the west very different from the type of country I am used to, but, very interesting, and very, very friendly.

If you wonder exactly what services the District Home Economist offers you — well, feel free to call on me with any homemaking problems you may have. I'll at least try to find the answer for you. Booklets and information on many subjects in the homemaking field are available, as are the services of specialists in clothing, home management, and interior design.

Short courses and demonstrations on a wide range of subjects such as sewing, cooking, interior design, home planning and management, etc., etc., can be arranged through this office, so that if your group is interested in a particular subject, please get in touch with me as we are planning our fall program, and would welcome suggestions.

I am looking forward to meeting as many of you as possible.

Instant happiness! Read a book or a pamphlet and then live happily ever after! This is what some of us yearn for, but it's not quite that simple. But some people do seem to have a formula—a philosophy — that helps them to live happily, useful lives. Dr. Will Menninger has given us his personal guide lines in a pamphlet entitled "Seven Keys to a Happy Life". You may have it, free, by writing to the Canadian Mental Health Association, 619 Revillon Building, Edmonton.
